

About evacuation in the event of a disaster

In the event of a large-scale disaster (If there is a risk of a large-scale disaster occurring), please evacuate to a temporary accommodation facility to ensure your safety.

◎If you are already in a safe place and can continue to stay, such as if the accommodation you are staying in is safe, stay safe in your current location.

◎If there are no problems with transportation and you are able to return home, please go home.

✂As a general rule, a large-scale disaster is assumed to be an earthquake with a seismic intensity of at least 5 or higher, or a landslide disaster planning information is issued.

<About the role of temporary accommodation facilities and subsequent response>

○Temporary accommodation facilities are opened on an emergency basis in the event of a large-scale disaster to ensure the safety of tourists, avoid confusion, and provide public transportation information.

○At temporary accommodation facilities, city officials work with facility managers to provide information to help people return home, such as the damage situation in the city and public transportation information.

○If transportation from the city is difficult to recover due to the disaster situation, city staff will guide you from this temporary accommodation facility to a designated public evacuation site.
